OSHA & ANSI 2015, Understanding the Difference

OSHA
Regulations for First Aid Kits
OSHA (U.S Department of Labor Occupational Safety & Health Administration) lays out general industry employer responsibilities for medical services and first aid for injured or sick workers in Code of Federal Regulations under section 29 CFR 1910.151.

Employers must ensure that first aid supplies are readily available. OSHA does not provide specifications for first aid kit contents per se but defines mandatory requirements for availability of kits on worksites.

All ANSI 2015 First Aid Kits are OSHA Compliant, Along with Meeting Additional Specifications & Content Requirements
ANSI (the American National Standards Institute) and ISEA (International Safety Equipment Association) American National Standard – Minimum Requirements for Workplace First Aid Kits and Supplies (ANSI/ISEA Z308.1-2015) establishes minimum performance requirements for first aid kits and their supplies. First aid kits are classified based on the assortment and quantity of first aid supplies intended to deal with most types of injuries and sudden illnesses that may be encountered in the workplace.

Two Classes of ANSI 2015 Kits
The 2015 ANSI revision introduces two classes of first aid kits.

Class A kits with contents designed to deal with most common types of workplace injuries.

Class B kits with a broader range and quantity of supplies to deal with injuries in more complex or high-risk environments.

Four Types of ANSI 2015 Kits
The kit containers are classified by portability, ability to be mounted, resistance to water, and corrosion and impact resistance.

Type I Intended for use in stationary, indoor applications where kit contents have minimal potential for damage due to environmental factors and rough handling. These kits are not intended to be portable and should have a means for mounting in a fixed position.

Type II Intended for use in portable indoor applications where the potential for damage due to environmental factors and rough handling is minimal. These kits should be equipped with a carrying handle.

Type III Intended for portable use in mobile indoor and/or outdoor settings where the potential for damage due to environmental factors is not probable. Kits should have the means to be mounted and have a water resistant seal.

Type IV Intended for portable use in mobile industries and/or outdoor applications where the potential for damage due to environmental factors and rough handling is significant.

Who Can Respond and Control a Bleeding Incident? YOU!

No matter how rapid the arrival of professional emergency responders, bystanders will always be first on the scene, so it is imperative to encourage bystanders to become equipped, educated, and empowered to help in a bleeding emergency before professional help arrives.

Bleeding events can occur without warning from violence or accidents in locations ranging from workplaces to schools to public spaces. Making sure that people and organizations have the proper bleeding control kits and cabinets is the first step Americans can take toward ensuring bleeding traumas are preventable.

Heat Illness Can Be Deadly

During hot weather, especially with high humidity, sweating isn't enough. Body temperature can rise to dangerous levels if you don't drink enough water and rest in the shade. You can suffer from heat exhaustion or heat stroke. Heat illnesses and deaths are preventable.

OSHA Employers Must Protect Workers from Excessive Heat

Under OSHA law, employers are responsible for providing workplaces free of known safety hazards. This includes protecting workers from extreme heat. Working in full sunlight can increase heat index values by 15 degrees Fahrenheit. Keep this in mind and plan additional precautions for working in these conditions.

CLEAN-UP IS EASY AS 1-2-3!

SURFACES Safe for surfaces including Asphalt, Tile and Concrete
